County looking for ways to control new wilderness park along Ohio River

The Hartig Wilderness Preserve was the major topic at last Thursday’s Gallatin County Fiscal Court meeting.

The magistrates and Judge/executive Ken McFarland discussed how to regulate the more than 400 acres on Steeles Bottom Road along the Ohio River. The Hartig Family has donated the property under the condition it be used only as a nature and wildlife preserve for hiking and hunting.

ment committee for it,” said Judge McFarland. “We’ll put an ad in the paper and form a game plan to develop the property.”

Magistrate Joe Shinkle raised concerns about the number of trees cut down in the preserve for firewood sales.

“There’s a lot of green hickory and ash being cut,” he said. “What started as people cutting firewood has gotten out of hand and we might need to consider issuing cutting permits. Maybe we limit it to two loads per month.”

Sheriff Josh Neale agreed there’s been too much cutting on the property.

Magistrate Jeff Wallace said perhaps the county should ask the state Forestry Department to tag dead trees suitable for cutting.

“Anyone who needs firewood for the winter probably has it by now,” said Judge McFarland. “Maybe we stop the cutting for the rest of the year.”

In other fiscal court business:

- The new county ambulance is here and should be operating later this week. It’s a “top of the line” Chevrolet said Ken McCarty of the life squad.

In a related matter the county may buy a new rescue truck for use in Glencoe.

- Judge McFarland said last year was hard on Gallatin County’s roads with lots of slips and repairs needed. The magistrates unanimously voted to install guard rails where some of the slips occurred at a cost of about $40,000 for 3,000 feet.

School audit says changes are needed

Most recommendations already being addressed

The findings of an audit by Kentucky Auditor Adam Edelen’s office recommends Gallatin County School System should make several financial changes but has found no wrong doing or illegal activity.

The audit, which cost the school system $23,050, was performed because of concerns by school board member Chad Murray, who represents District Three (Napoleon/Concord).

One of the audit’s findings criticized the school system for having a finance director on staff and also contracting to pay a financial consultant. The consultant did much of the work the director should have been doing because the finance director did not have the expertise to perform “higher level financial and accounting functions,” the auditor’s report said.

“We knew this needed to be changed and it has been,” said Superintendent of Schools Travis Huber. “Our former financial director (Connie Wainscott) has retired and we have hired Kelley Gamble to do the job. He has all the experience necessary and formerly worked as the finance director for the Kenton County School System before he retired.”

The audit also recommended duties of people contracted to work for the school system be made clearer and no payments should be made to them if not previously approved.

Fires destroys store’s office

Fire raced through the office of the closed Glencoe General Store Sunday evening.

Deputy Sheriff Travis Birchwell discovered the blaze after Gallatin County’s 911 Center reported alarms at the store were going off.

“Travis was in the area and got there right away,” said Sheriff Josh Neale. “He saw smoke coming out the back door and alerted the fire departments.”

“We arrived at 9:42 (p.m.),” said Glencoe Fire Chief Bud Webster. “We attacked the fire from the interior of the office and knocked it down fairly quickly.”

Webster said the first fire truck got there just before a CSX train stopped at the Glencoe railroad crossing blocking access to the store. No other fire trucks could get to the store for several minutes while a dispatcher called CSX to explain there was an emergency.

The Gallatin County Fire Department, Gallatin County EMS, Gallatin County Sheriff’s Department and the Kentucky State Police assisted the Glencoe Fire Department efforts in controlling the blaze.

“I’d say the fire might be suspicious because the store had been closed since Jan. 15,” said Gallatin County Fire Chief Barry Alexander. “We were there about three hours to make sure it didn’t spread to the apartment above the store. There was some smoke damage and I think about 20 percent of the store was damaged. Most of that damage was in the office.”

State Police arson detective Tony Wilson opened an investigation in an attempt to try to determine the cause of the fire. Trooper Mitch Hazlette said Wilson found nothing suspicious and believes a faulty space heater could have started the fire.

“I’m in shock here because rumors about arson are totally wrong,” said former store manager Karen Michalski. “This is an old building built in the 1800s and there was a lot of exposed wiring in the ceiling. Darrin Maxwell, who did some of our electrical work, said it was dangerous over a year ago.”

Michalski also said the store’s owner, J. P. McGuire has no insurance.

Dealing with stress from the job

This and That

By Kelley Warnick
Editor

I received a call from an old high school friend last week who was concerned after reading that journalists and especially photo journalists have one of the most stressful jobs in the world.

“Hope you’re taking care of yourself,” John Braham said. “Stress can break down your body and your mind.”

John should know about stress. Before he retired, he was a colonel with the elite U.S. Army Special Forces Command.

At first, I didn’t pay attention to my friend’s observation. I figured I could deal with any stress that found its way into my life with no problem.

Then, I remembered a recent basketball game I photographed.

The referee threatened to kick me out of the gym because he thought I was sitting too close to the court. At halftime, I had to find aspirin and antacids to deal with the stress the referee brought me.

A few days later, I noticed a beautiful Mute Swan on the Indiana side of the Ohio River as I drove home. I don’t see many swans and decided to get a photograph for the paper. It took me a while to beat my way through the Indiana brush to get to the riverbank. I then crawled on my stomach to get as close to the swan as I could.

Finally, I was ready for the shot. I focused the camera, pressed the shutter and then realized the camera’s battery was sitting in the charger at the newspaper office. I could feel the stress pulsate through my body.

It’s not only photography that brings stress to my life. The day an electric surge that wiped out all our computers was stressful. That happened when a logger cut down a tree, which then tore down one of the area’s main electric lines as it fell. I was filled with stress until the lights came back on, the computers were repaired and we published our newspaper for the week.

It was stressful last winter when the furnace at the news office broke and the employees refused to work until the temperature inside the building rose above 45 degrees.

I also had some stress when our office cat tried to attack a group of Cub Scouts who toured the office. And, there was stress the day an upset father charged into the office demanding to know why there was a picture in the paper of his daughter washing a car in her bikini. Luckily, I defused the situation before we needed to call the police or an ambulance.

After recalling all of these stressful incidents, I began to think my friend had a good point. Maybe I did need to reduce the stress in my life.

One article I read said the best way to do that was to lie down in a dark room, play soft music, close your eyes and think soothing thoughts.

That makes sense to me. After all, how much stress can you have when you’re sleeping like a baby.

Washington 'gridlock' has helped lower deficit

Gridlock isn't all bad, at least when it comes to the federal deficit.

The Wall Street Journal reports the federal deficit in 2014 fell to a seven-year low of $488 billion, or $72 billion less than in 2013. If measured by the federal government's fiscal year calendar, which ended in September, the deficit was $483 billion. Both numbers are the lowest of Barack Obama's presidency.

The deficit is still a big number, especially when compared to the latter days of the Clinton administration, when the nation ran a surplus. But compared to the trillion-dollar deficits run in the name of "economic stimulus" during the Great Recession, $488 billion represents progress.

In relative terms, the 2014 deficit is less than three percent of gross domestic product, lower than the average for the 1980s and far better than the 10 percent of GDP that was registered in 2009 amid the president's stimulus programs.

An improving economy and accompanying growth in tax receipts gets some of the credit for the declining deficit. But another significant factor is the once-notorious sequester, a series of automatic spending caps and cuts that grew out of the inability of a politically divided Congress to agree on a budget any other way.

As it turns out, that financial discipline proved far less draconian than it was made out to be by many politicians, and some degree of fiscal responsibility ended up being restored.

The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office forecasts that the deficit will again decline in 2015, but then will start to spike due to increased government spending on Social Security and Medicare.

Money in the Social Security Disability Insurance pool will run dry in 2016 and government spending on health benefits is also slated to rise, putting upward pressure on the deficit. Longer term, the CBO projects that the deficit will climb back toward the $1 trillion mark over the next 10 years, reaching $960 billion by 2024.

Entitlement spending—primarily Social Security and Medicare—is the big culprit in the longer term deficit outlook. Given that reality, fiscal restraint on current deficit spending is about the only arrow left in the quiver. If such restraint is the result of Washington gridlock, then maybe we need more of it.

Thanks to library for computer help

Dear Editor:

For the first time since I've filed income taxes, I needed to find the forms online.

I was apprehensive since I don't work with computers, but was told to go to the library to obtain the forms using their computer.

After entering the library, I approached the information desk and a very kind lady asked me if I needed help. I found out later her name was Bonnie Roberts.

As I explained my dilemma, another lady came up and asked me if I had a library card. She typed in my name and told me she would find my library card number because I needed it to sign on at the computer.

She then took me to one of the computers and sat down with me and started typing everything in for me. When I asked her questions, she took time to show me. She was patient and helpful.

After we'd finished, I found out from Bonnie that the lady who wasn't "too busy" to help me was Shirley Warnick.

So, thanks, to our library and the ladies who weren't too busy to care.

Kentucky Commentary

Smoking ban should be debated by candidates

The filing deadline to run for governor is January 27. And the General Assembly will reconvene for the rest of its short session the week after.

A legislative session is a time for ideas and a governor's race should be, too. But as ideas clash on the Capitol's third floor, our prospects are poor for the campaign to occupy the governor's mansion on December 8.

Attorney General Jack Conway has no real competition in the Democratic primary and sees no need to engage with the three Republican candidates. Those are some of his reasons for not attending the Kentucky Press Association forum next Friday.

That's disappointing in a state that needs all the ideas it can get. And Democrats should be doubly disappointed because they've been running behind Republicans in the idea business for a long time.

The Republican-led state Senate tried to reveal that by fast-tracking pet bills that will go nowhere in the Democrat-controlled House but provide talking points for Republican legislators and gubernatorial candidates. These include: reining in the governor's regulatory power, requiring face-to-face counseling 24 hours before an abortion, and a "right to work" bill that bans union contracts that require all workers to pay dues or fees to the union.

One question the Republican candidates are likely to get is whether they will support a statewide ban on smoking in most public places.

A smoking ban might not seem politically smart in a state where 27 percent of adults smoke, but other Kentucky numbers argue for it: $1.9 billion in health-care expenses directly caused by tobacco use, $590 million of that in the Medicaid program; $2.8 billion in lost worker productivity; $128 million in estimated health-care expenses due to secondhand smoke, which has been proven to cause cancer; and our state's No. 1 ranking in cancer, lung cancer and deaths from lung cancer.

We heard cancer talk this month from a surprising source: Senate President Robert Stivers, perhaps the most powerful opponent of a smoking ban. He called for reopening the state budget to authorize a new research building at the University of Kentucky, with cancer as the main target.

Stivers' opposition to a ban is based in his limited-government philosophy: "Somewhere along the line, government can't be the nanny for everybody," he told me in an interview.

At the annual public-policy dinner of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, which supports a smoking ban, Stivers talked about his family members who died of cancer and one who has been recently diagnosed. "Cancer and diseases like this affect every person in this state," he said.

Stivers said none of the cancers in his family were attributable to smoking, and the research facility would search for the causes of cancer—perhaps even including a look at the possibility that large-scale surface mining in Eastern Kentucky has boosted cancer rates.

While he may be the leading foe of a smoking ban, he says he won't be an obstacle—allowing all Senate Republicans to decide whether the bill, if approved by a committee, will get to the floor.

He acknowledged that some senators may say they would vote for the bill if it gets to the floor, while opposing the effort to get it there.

That makes the job especially tricky for Sen. Julie Raque Adams of Louisville, sponsor of the Senate bill. Her first task is to make sure it gets to the committee she chairs, Health and Welfare. She told me her biggest hurdle is the notion that smoking bans should be left to localities.

"The numbers are so dramatic that this actually requires a state response," she said.

Now there's an idea. May the ideas clash, and the public be served.

Steel mill wins safety award

Employees and officials at Nucor Steel Gallatin (formerly Gallatin Steel) on U. S. 42 near Ghent were presented with the Governor's Safety and Health Award last week. The honor recognizes the plant's 465 employees for working 1,067,653 hours without a serious accident.

"This honor goes to the hundreds of employees who contribute to the success of Nucor Steel Gallatin and make safety the top priority every day," said Secretary Larry Roberts of the Kentucky Labor Cabinet.

Nucor has 200 steel plants around the world and is the largest steel producer in the United States. The company is also North America's biggest recycler.

"Excellence in productivity, quality and especially safety this year has taken the focus of everyone here," said general manager and vice president John Farris. "Our facility continues to rank at the top and be a leader in safety among the steel manufacturers in North America. We are extremely proud of every teammate at Nucor Steel Gallatin for this accomplishment and for their commitment to work safely so they can go home to their family each day."

School Audit

ously authorized. It said the superintendent and board members should receive a monthly report of expenditures to contract employees.

The audit criticized the school system for not clearly listing the salaries and job descriptions of its employees.

"It wasn't as easy as it should have been to find out the salaries of our employees and especially our administrators," said Huber. "Sometimes you had to look at several places before you could find out what someone's total salary was. That's not the way it is in most school systems and we'll change that too."

Huber said he agreed with all the audit's findings and believes it ensures the Gallatin County School District operates in an ethical, legal and transparent manner that will build trust with the county's residents.

Lady Cats are Class A Region champs

Dossett, Bowen, Sullivan & Wesley named all tournament

Mark Gray
Sports Reporter
The Gallatin County Lady Wildcats advanced to their sixth All A Classic last week by winning the regional tourney in two heart-stopping games.

Both contests were not decided until the final ten seconds as clutch free throw shooting propelled Gallatin to victory.

The one constant in those six titles is Coach Holly Roberts. This will be her third trip as head coach and she also played in the tournament in 1994, 1995 and 1997.

Williamstown
After defeating Carroll in Monday's opening round, the Lady Cats faced Williamstown in Wednesday's semi-final match up.

Gallatin sprinted out to a 15-8 lead after one quarter and 27-22 at halftime.

Nevertheless, by the end of the third quarter, the Demons had fought back to take a 43-41 lead.

The Lady Cats reclaimed the lead early in the fourth quarter, but consecutive three-point baskets by Williamstown put them up 53-50 with two minutes to play.

Two free throws by Hannah Dossett with 1:47 left and a bucket by Danielle Wesley with 1:22 remaining regained the advantage for Gallatin at 54-53.

The Demons tied the score at 54 and forced Gallatin into a turnover with under 30 seconds to reclaim possession.

But Autumn Bowen came up with a huge steal and then passed to Dossett who was fouled driving to the basket with 15 seconds to play. She calmly sank both foul shots for a 56-54 lead. After a Williamstown miss, Bowen hit one of two from the foul line to make it 57-54.

The Demons' three-point attempt in the waning seconds misfired and the Lady Cats had earned a trip to the finals.

Dossett had 27 points to lead Gallatin. Bowen scored 13 points.

Blaire Sullivan had a huge double-double with 11 points and 11 rebounds. Wesley added 4 points and Kaylee Terrell chipped in with 2 points.

Gallatin hit 18 of 51 field goals for 35 percent and 18 of 25 foul shots for 72 percent.

Walton-Verona
The Lady Cats faced Walton-Verona in the title game. The Bearcats had defeated Gallatin 51-44 on December 6 in Warsaw.

As before, Gallatin got off to a good start and grabbed a 17-9 lead after one quarter. By halftime, however, Walton-Verona had trimmed the lead to 28-27.

Gallatin extended their advantage to 39-31, but the Bearcats pulled to within 41-37 heading to the fourth quarter.

A 10-4 run to start the fourth gave Gallatin a 51-41 lead with 2:30 to play. Walton-Verona responded with a 10-2 run to trail only 53-51 with 47 seconds left.

Bowen's two foul shots with 39 seconds left gave the Lady Cats a 55-51 advantage.

After Dossett blocked a Bearcat shot, she was fouled and sank two free throws with 17 seconds to play for a 57-51 lead.

A Walton-Verona

three-pointer cut the lead to 57-54, but Wesley's two free throws with 10 seconds left iced the game and the championship.

A Bearcats three-pointer in the final seconds made the final score 59-57.

Dossett scored 21 points and pulled down 9 rebounds. She now has 1,991 points for her career.

Wesley added 14 points, Bowen 9, Terrell 7, Sullivan 6, and Beatty 3. Bowen also added 8 rebounds.

The Lady Cats hit 22 of 48 field goals for 47 percent and 13 of 15 free throws for 87 percent.

Dossett, Bowen, Sullivan and Wesley were named to the All Tournament Team with Dossett taking MVP honors.

Class A State Tourney

Gallatin's first round opponent in Frankfort will be the seventh region champion at 8 p.m. next Wednesday, the 28th. Should the girls win, they would play in Friday's quarter-final at 1 p.m.

Before Gallatin makes the trip to Frankfort, the Lady Cats will host Cooper on Wednesday and travel to Oldham County on Friday.

Boys fall to Owen in tourney thriller

The Gallatin County Wildcat boys basketball team hosted the 8th Region All A last week and nearly pulled off an upset in the tournament semi-finals on Thursday.

After defeating Carroll County in Tuesday's opening round, Coach Jon Jones' team fell by two points to eventual champion Owen Co.

On Tuesday, Gallatin took on Carroll County, who had beaten the Wildcats 73-69 on their home floor four nights earlier.

On this day, though, the Wildcats took the lead early with hot shooting and never looked back. They took a 20-13 lead after one quarter and increased that to 38-18 at the half.

Gallatin still led 49-35 after three quarters and the Panthers would cut the lead to 11 points, but that is as close as they would come. The final was 63-46.

Senior guard Kaleb Beckham had 30 points for the Wildcats. He hit 10 of 13 from the field, including 6 of 8 from behind the arc.

Noah McCubbin had 15 points, 7 rebounds and 7 blocked shots. Mason Wilson had 11 points and 6 assists.

Jay Shrader added 4 points and Austin Steurer chipped in with 3.

Gallatin hit 20 of 43 field goals for 46% and 15 of 24 from the foul line for 63%.

On Thursday, the Wildcats' semi-final match up was against Owen County, with whom they had split two games earlier in the season.

The Rebels jumped out to a 13-5 first quarter lead, but the Cats used a huge second quarter to grab a 25-20 halftime lead.

Owen regrouped in the third quarter and took advantage of Wildcat foul trouble to take a slim 35-34 lead into the final 8 minutes.

The Rebels maintained the lead until late in the fourth quarter when Wilson's lay up with 47 seconds left pulled the Cats within 45-43.

After an Owen basket, Noah McCubbin's stickback basket put the Wildcats within 47-45 with :21 left.

Owen hit one of two foul shots to go up 48-45, but Wilson was fouled with 8 seconds left and calmly sank both free throws to trail 48-47.

On the inbounds, the Cats couldn't foul until 1.7 seconds left. Owen hit the second of two free throws to grab a 49-47 lead.

On the ensuing inbounds pass, Steurer got away an off balance three-pointer that bounced off the rim as time expired.

Wilson had 23 points and 8 rebounds to lead the Cats. Beckham added 12 points. Both Beckham and Wilson were named to the All Tournament Team.

McCubbin had 8 points and 6 rebounds and Chris Brown added 4 points and 7 rebounds.

The Cats hit 19 of 46 from the field for 41% and 8 of 10 from the line for 80%.

The Rebels advanced to the championship where they defeated Walton-Verona 62-47. They will play Augusta, the 10th region champ, at 6:30 next Thursday in Frankfort.

Gallatin will take a 6-11 record into this week's action. They travel to Maysville on Friday to take on St. Patrick. On Tuesday, they host Henry County to wind up District 31 play.

This week we have a VERY important birthday, meetings attended, visiting friends and loved ones, and an activity report from a very busy family.

•Patsy Brown attended a birthday celebration, Sunday, for her twin great-nieces, Jada and Carly Towles, who are now nine years old. Also present at the celebration were the girls' parents, Benjy and Nicole Towles, Bailey, Chrissy, and Austin Sullivan; Myrna Lozier, Sandra, Gage, and Paige Sawyer and Paige's friend, Tanner; Rita Sample, Tracy and D.J. Cayton, and Mary Rae Mattox.

Also attending were friends of Jada and Carly and friends of the adults. The guests enjoyed snacks as well as cake and ice cream, games were played, and the girls received lots of presents. HAPPY BIRTHDAY, JADA AND CARLY!

•Mary Jane Day attended the Monday night meeting of the Gallatin County Tourism Board to see Bob Weldon sworn in as a new member. Scott Workman was to have been sworn in as well, but could not be present and will be sworn in at a later date.

•Wednesday found Mary Jane at the Extension Office for the monthly meeting of the Cross County Homemakers.

She said they all discussed their New Year's resolutions, and hers was to stay home more, which she said she has already broken.

Thursday morning, Mary Jane attended the Northern Kentucky Tourism Meeting in Covington.

•Carol Estes enjoyed a morning visit with Mrs. Joyce Cole of Walton on Thursday.

Joy is the aunt of Carol's late husband, Tim, and wife of the late Rev. Ken Cole, who was interim pastor at Warsaw Baptist Church twice after he retired from the pastorate at Walton First Baptist.

Carol and Joy ate breakfast at Cracker Barrel in Dry Ridge and then went back to the Cole home in Walton to look at pictures from Joy's trip to England last year, and to catch up on all the family news.

•Dennis and Loretta Dover enjoyed a long weekend visit with their grandchildren. Brooke, Charlotte, and Rachel arrived Friday.

The young ones especially enjoyed playing with their little cousin, eight-month-old Skylar, all weekend. They don't get to see her often, since they live in Miamisburg, and were excited to see how mobile and vocal she is now.

They all had a lovely time going out to lunch, shopping, and playing games. Loretta said it was their first long visit since September, and she and Dennis have really missed them. Charlotte and Rachel are growing up so fast, both in Girl Scouts and working hard on their cookie sales and enjoy playing laser tag, video games, roller skating, and visiting their proud grandparents.

•Betty and Boyd Lionberger enjoyed a Sunday visit from the Williamson family - daughter, Cindy; son-in-law, Jack; granddaughter, Jaclyn; and great-granddaughter, two-year-old Nova.

They had a nice supper together, and Nova had a great time playing with the new puzzles Betty and Boyd had purchased.

Spike Wright went to Frankfort Wednesday for a conference with one of his friends from law school, Brett Davis. Then, they drove to Transylvania University in Lexington to hear Robert Kennedy, Jr. speak.

Jack Wright treated his mom, Barbie, to dinner at Jewell's on Main, Thursday.

Maggie spent the night with her friend, Isabelle Brown on Friday and Jack's girlfriend visited from Purdue for the long weekend.

Saturday, Barbie and her sister, Kathy, went to visit their aunt in Cincinnati.

Barbie had received a call from the nursing home that her aunt was not doing well, but upon arrival they found her to be her usual talkative self, for which they were most thankful.

While there, they were pleased to meet a cousin they'd never met who had also come to visit Aunt Irene.

Sunday, Ben had to work, Jack was at his girlfriend's house again, Maggie watched movies all day, so Spike and Barbie seized the opportunity to take much-needed naps. Barbie said it was great!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

Media Smart Youth

As young people spend more time than ever in front of a television or a computer screen, the 4-H Media Smarts Youth will empower young people to make healthy choices about nutrition and physical activity by helping them understand how media can influence their lives.

The first meeting will be held on Wednesday, January 28th after school. This program will help young people build knowledge and skills in the areas of nutrition, physical activity and media analysis.

•Nutrition – young people learn about key concepts in a balanced diet and practice ways to make smart snack choices in real-life settings.

•Physical activity – Young people discuss the importance of daily physical activity for promoting health and practice ways to be more active in their daily lives.

•Media analysis and production – Young people explore the connections between media and health and learn to analyze and create media messages. Young people will develop their own media message with the help of KET to promote positive messages about nutrition and physical activity to their peers.

Habits that start in childhood and are reinforced in the teen years become lifelong behaviors. The Media-Smarts Youth program is one tool to help ensure that these behaviors are healthy ones.

If you are interested in learning about putting together a media message about nutrition and physical activity then come Wednesday, January 28th. You must have a permission slip to attend which is available in the 4-H newsletter and at the Gallatin County Extension Office.

Light show

Mother Nature put on a colorful light show as another day dawned in Gallatin County on Monday. Light from the rising sun turned the cirrocumulus clouds on the horizon a bright red for several minutes. Sunrise now comes about a minute earlier every day as we make our way through winter and toward spring.

Gallatin County Emergency Management Office
Brandon Terrell, Director

Everyone is potentially at risk during winter storms. Most fatalities are indirectly related to the storm. People die from traffic accidents on icy roads, heart attacks while shoveling snow, and hypothermia from prolonged exposure to cold and unsafe residential conditions.

Be prepared! Listen to NOAA weather radio or commercial radio/television to stay informed about winter storm watches, warnings and advisories.

At home and work, plan ahead for winter storms by having these on hand:

- Flashlight and extra batteries
- Battery-backup powered NOAA weather Radio
- AM/FM Radio
- Extra food and water - high energy food such as dried fruit, nuts and granola bars, and food requiring no cooking or refrigeration

- Can opener
- Extra medicine and baby supplies
- First aid kit
- Heating fuel
- Emergency heat source
- Fire extinguisher
- Smoke alarm
- Make sure pets have plenty of food, water, and shelter

If you are already indoors during hazardous winter weather:

- Stay inside!
- When using alternate heat from a fireplace, wood stove, space heater, etc., use fire safeguards and properly ventilate
- Close off unneeded rooms
- Stuff towels or rags in cracks under doors
- Cover windows at night
- Eat and drink - food provides the body with energy for producing its own heat
- Wear layers of loose-fitting, lightweight, warm clothing

The best advice for traveling during forecasted winter conditions is; "simply stay at home". Only travel if necessary.
